INTRODUCTION

2/15/60

- Q1 Envelope bearing hand printed address "Occupant A. Coors
Residence Golden Colo." postmarked "BOULDER COLO. FEB 11
1960 1 30 PM"
- Q2 Accompanying one-page hand printed letter beginning
"To Whom it May Concern:....," and ending "...or else."

Result of examination:

The envelope, Q1, is made of white linen finish paper containing the watermark "HY TONE." Paper containing this watermark is listed for the Western Tablet and Stationery Corporation, St. Joseph, Missouri. The envelope measures 7.50" in length and 3.96" in width.

The paper comprising the note, Q2, measures 10.97" in length and 8.50" in width. One side of the paper is unruled. The other side bears 36 blue-green lines. Near the top are two sets of double red lines, one of which has a purple line between the two red lines. There is no watermark in the paper. This paper was apparently removed from a pad or tablet.

The hand printing on the envelope and letter, Q1 and Q2, is done mostly in uppercase block printing, apparently with the use of a ruler or some other straight object. This hand printing was searched through the Anonymous Letter File, but nothing of significance was found. A photograph has been added.

ADMINISTRATIVE: It is noted this case was received at the Denver Office on 2/12/60, but it was not assigned for active investigation until April. Agent to whom case assigned has had other leads on the COORNAP case, as well as other expedite work. Also, difficulty was encountered in locating for interview [redacted] of the University of Colorado Residence Halls, who has held that position or other positions with the residence halls for many years and is perhaps as familiar with students and their activities in the halls as anyone on the campus. Several attempts were made to locate [redacted] of the University of Colorado. It was felt interviews with these persons should be conducted before a report was submitted, particularly since other investigation had been negative.

All persons interviewed who are connected with the University of Colorado are administrative officials who have been contacted on numerous occasions in connection with other matters in the past. Academic staff members were not contacted since none appeared to be logical interviewees.

Synopsis:

Anonymous letter mailed Boulder, Colo., 2/11/60, to A. COORS Residence, Golden, Colo., demanding $8,000 be left in brief case at east door of Indian Grill of University of Colorado Memorial Center, Boulder, by 2/15/60. Letter and envelope printed in upper case letters of block style and apparently drawn with aid of straight edge. Letter on ruled page 8.50" x 10.97" apparently taken from tablet with no watermark. Envelope 7.50" x 3.96" contains watermark "Hy Tone" and both can be purchased at University of Colorado Bookstore near payoff spot. Five latent fingerprints of value developed. Investigation, Boulder, negative but two possible suspects developed and consensus of University officials and others that letter most likely written as prank by some student. Students and staff at University of Colorado not fingerprinted.

The letter in this case is quoted as follows:

To Whom it May Concern:

I want $8,000.00 by the 15th of Feb. Take it to Indian Grill at U of C Memorial Center. Put it in a brief case and leave it by the east door. Do not tell the cops or else."

The envelope was addressed "Occupant A. Coors Residence Golden Colo.," and was postmarked, "BOULDER COLO. FEB 11 1960 1:30 PM."

The letter and envelope with copies of same were forwarded to the FBI Laboratory on February 12, 1960, requesting they be searched through the Anonymous Letter File and that they be treated for latent fingerprints.

The FBI Laboratory advised on February 16, 1960, as follows:

"Q1 Envelope bearing hand printed address 'Occupant A. Coors Residence Golden Colo.' postmarked 'BOULDER COLO. FEB 11 1960 1 30 PM'

"Q2 Accompanying one-page hand printed letter beginning 'To Whom it May Concern:....,' and ending '...or else.'

"Result of examination:

"The envelope, Q1, is made of white linen finish paper containing the watermark 'HY TONE.' Paper containing this watermark is listed for the Western Tablet and Stationery Corporation, St. Joseph, Missouri. The envelope measures 7.50" in length and 3.96" in width.

The paper comprising the note, Q2, measures 10.37" in length and 8.50" in width. One side of the paper is unruled. The other side bears 36 blue-green lines. Near the top are two sets of double red lines, one of which has a purple line between the two red lines. There is no watermark in the paper. This paper was apparently removed from a pad or tablet.

"The hand printing on the envelope and letter, Q1 and Q2, is done mostly in uppercase block printing, apparently with the use of a ruler or some other straight object. This hand printing was searched through the Anonymous Letter File, but nothing of significance was found. A photograph has been added."

The Laboratory reported that because of the nature of the hand printing, it is doubtful whether an identification with known hand printing samples can ever be made.

On February 17, 1960, the Latent Fingerprint Section of the Identification Division advised as follows:

"SPECIMENS: Q1 and Q2, one envelope and accompanying one-page hand written letter

"Five latent fingerprints of value developed on envelope and letter, designated Q1 and Q2 separate laboratory report. Fingerprints searched through single fingerprint file without effecting an identification."

On April 26, 1960, [REDACTED] NA, Detective, Boulder Police Department, advised that his office had received no complaints of any letters of a threatening nature and he said he could shed no light upon anyone who might have written a letter in this case. He said he certainly would have no specific suspects in the matter but offhand he would be inclined to think the letter was probably written by some at the University of Colorado. [redacted] stated that it is the purpose of actually collecting on the money. He is of his opinion a student could very well have intended to collect without any intention of ever collecting any money. He has the idea of watching the pay-off spot and getting a thrill out of seeing what might have been done with the request. [redacted] said that in the event he should receive any information that might be of benefit in investigation in this case he would immediately advise.

On April 26, 1960, [redacted] Sheriff of Boulder County, Boulder, advised he could shed no light on any suspects in this case and said he had received no complaints of any anonymous letters being received within his jurisdiction recently. [redacted] advised he thought the matter might have been started by a student at the University of Colorado, noting that there are a number of pranksters always attending school, many of whom would do most anything for a thrill. He said if this were the case, he doubts that anyone would have intended to actually collect the money but, rather, would have obtained their satisfaction from watching the pay-off spot or just in the knowledge of having pulled some kind of prank.

b7C

On April 28, 1960, [redacted] Boulder, advised that the only mail which is postmarked at Boulder at 1:30 P.M. is mail collected from the University of Colorado campus and approximately six collection stations between the campus and the Post Office, as well as from the Post Office itself and the courtesy box just outside the Post Office. [redacted] explained that two mail trucks take mail to the campus of the University of Colorado, which includes mail for the administrative and academic offices as well as all of the dormitories. He said that after delivering the mail at approximately noon they collect all outgoing mail from the University offices and from the dormitories and bring it back to the Post Office where it is postmarked at 1:30 P.M. He explained that on the way from the campus to the Post Office these trucks pick up mail at the Colorado Bookstore, a substation, and at mailboxes at 14th and College Streets; the

b6

box at University and Broadway; the box at Broadway and Arapahoe and at boxes located outside the First National Bank and the Mercantile Bank and Trust Company. He said these are the only collections that would be postmarked at 1:30 P.M. From other sections of town collections are made throughout the day but none of them would bear a postmark of 1:30 P.M. [] also stated that by far the greatest amount of mail collected by the two trucks would be from the University of Colorado offices and dormitories.

On May 14, 1960, [] University Memorial Center, University of Colorado, explained the Indian Grill is a cafeteria located on the basement level of the University Memorial Center Building and is open from 7:00 in the morning until 11:00 at night each day. He said the Grill is used by most of the 10,000 students attending the University of Colorado, at least for coffee and snacks, if not for meals. He said there was a great deal of student traffic in and out of the Indian Grill.

[] said the Indian Grill faces to the north as far as any outside entrances are concerned and there are two doors by which the Grill may be entered from the outside directly, one being to the west and one to the east on this north side. In addition, he said the Indian Grill can be entered from a door on the east of the building but it is necessary to come through a room used by outdoor clubs and mainly the Mountain Rescue Group. By entering the union building through the Rocky Mountain Rescue Group room a person can go on into the Indian Grill through a short hallway and a door which is located on the east side of the Indian Grill proper.

[] pointed out in person the large room which constitutes the Indian Grill with the cafeteria steam tables and the fountain. The room itself is filled with small tables seating four persons each and it was noted these tables are placed up close to the doors, in fact, all of the space available is utilized, [] noted. He said many students leave things in the Grill and sometimes will be left there for several hours but, ordinarily, any books or packages would be turned in to the Lost and Found within a relatively short time. He said that things left in the outdoor clubs' room might be left there longer. It was noted, as [] pointed out, that the room on the east side of the Indian Grill leading into the short hallway and thence into the outdoor clubs' room is on the east side and in plain view of people at the fountain or working behind the fountain but would not be in view from every part of the room.

[] also pointed out the bookstore which is located across the big lobby from the Indian Grill. He said this bookstore does handle all kinds of paper in tablet form and handles envelopes for mailing. He said he thought probably they handled the Hy Tone brand of stationery.

b7C

On May 14, 1960, [] of the University of Colorado Bookstore, which is located in the University Memorial Center building, advised that bookstore does handle Hy Tone stationery and envelopes. In addition, he said they do have ruled tablets, 8½ x 11, some of which are ruled on one side and some on both sides. He said they sell literally thousands of envelopes and tablets and other types of stationery to students, faculty and staff members. He said these are the main people that do patronize the bookstore but some townspeople might on rare occasions buy from the bookstore for special purposes.

[] said that he certainly would have no suspects in this case and anyone buying this type of stationery would not be a suspect because of having purchased this particular type of stationery.

b7C

On May 23, 1960, [] University of Colorado, advised that she knows of no letters of an anonymous or threatening nature being received by any of the faculty or staff members at the University. She said that had any disgruntled students written such letters to professors or other people she believes that it would have been reported to the President's office and she would have known about it. She did say it is possible that a complaint could have been received in the office of the Vice President and Dean of Faculties at the University without being called to the attention of the President's office but she rather doubts it.

[redacted] did remark that a student by the name of [redacted] had written a rather nasty letter to the President complaining about the policies of the University but this letter contained no actual threats and was not anonymous. She said [redacted] had signed his name and seemed to be perfectly willing, if not anxious, that his identity be known. She also noted that [redacted] is a [redacted] in the [redacted] and because he had openly signed his name and they had talked to him she doubts that he would be a suspect.

[redacted] described the Indian Grill and said that because of its intended use as indicated in the letter she would be fearful that the author of the letter would be a student. She said she would certainly have no suspects but believed it quite possible that a student could have written the letter, either in seriousness or as a practical joke. She said that should anything come to her attention that would shed any light upon this case she would immediately get in touch with the Agent.

[redacted] also noted that sometimes the University of Colorado Memorial Center is referred to as the Memorial Union or the Student Union or just by the initials U.M.C.

On May 23, 1960, [redacted] of the University of Colorado and formerly [redacted] advised that he could think of no suspects in this case, either a student or member of the staff, but he did say it sounded like a student prank. He knew of no letters that had been directed to any of the staff or the faculty.

[redacted] pointed out that the name of the University Memorial Center, as adopted by the University Board of Regents, is not the name that is used in connection with their bond issues. He noted that in the latter case the name is the University of Colorado Student Memorial Center. It is noted here that in the instant letter after the initials "U of C," it appears that the writer started to write the word "student" and then erased three letters which would appear to be "Stu."

[redacted] said he did not know that this was of significance because there are members of the staff and also students who know the name that is used in connection with bond issues on the University Memorial Center and, also, he said it is common for these Memorial Centers at various universities to be referred to as Student Memorial Centers.

On May 23, 1960, [redacted]
[redacted] University of Colorado, and [redacted]
[redacted] University of Colorado, were interviewed and could furnish no information as to suspects. Both [redacted] and [redacted] said they knew of no letters being received by anyone on the staff that could be considered threatening or that were anonymous. They both felt that this could have been easily written by a student at the University, although they noted that anyone at the University or any other person could have written the letter and used the Indian Grill as a pay-off spot.

b6

On May 25, 1960, [redacted]
[redacted] University of Colorado, advised he knew of no anonymous or threatening letters being directed to anybody on the faculty or on the staff of the University of Colorado. His first reaction to a letter demanding money was that it was probably a student crank or a student crackpot. [redacted] noted that it might well be that a student would write a letter seriously intending to try and collect money but he noted also that they might have written the letter just as a prank or to see what would happen.

b7C

[] stated that students do not generally refer to the University Memorial Center as the University of Colorado Memorial Center but by the initials U.M.C. or as the Memorial Union or some other name. He said at the University of Colorado the Memorial Center is usually referred to as U.M.C. or Memorial Center. He also noted that students, particularly undergraduate students, do not make use of a brief case and he wondered whether that would be significant. He said graduate students, of course, may and oftentimes do, carry brief cases.

b6

[] also noted that at the University of Colorado dormitories are referred to as residence halls and not by the word dormitory which, he thought, might be significant in connection with the way the envelope was addressed. He also wondered about the word "Occupant" on the envelope and doubted that students would use such a word or be familiar with it in the matter of mailing unless such occupant mail is received in the dormitories. He said he did not know whether companies advertising their products did make use of the so-called occupant mail and would send it to all of the students in the dormitories.

[] noted that students do refer to the police as "cops" almost universally at the University of Colorado. He said it is either the "campus cops" or the "city cops" and he has personally overheard a student ask the security officer of the University if he were the "campus cop."

b7C

[] thought the phrase "To Whom it May Concern" to be an adult phrase but said it would not, of course, be unknown to students. He said that students might use such a phrase with the idea of throwing off any investigation. Concerning the pay-off spot, designated in the letter as the east door, [] considered this to be the door on the side of the University Memorial Center which door leads into the room used by the outdoor clubs, particularly the Mountain Climbers and the Rocky Mountain Rescue Group. He said that the Rocky Mountain Rescue Group is composed of students and also some townspeople. [] noted that it would be easy

IN 9-1023

He called this door as one leading into the Indian Grill, although it does not lead into the Grill directly. He did note that this particular door is the closest one to the residence halls area on the University of Colorado campus and said there was a great deal of student traffic through this door and through the room.

[redacted] concluded that it sounded to him like this was the work of a student who may have intended it as a prank or may have been serious. He did suggest that perhaps the psychiatrist at the University of Colorado Health Center might be able to give some information which would assist in the investigation.

On May 25, 1960, [redacted] [redacted] advised that he could think of no suspects in this case and his reaction was that it was the work of a student, although he said it could have been a member of the faculty; the staff or anyone else. He pointed out that the residence halls are all located in an area east of the University Memorial Center and students from the residence halls would use the east door. To [redacted] the east door to the Indian Grill meant the door leading into the outdoor clubs' room and from there on into the Indian Grill, although he said it is very possible that the door to the east on the north side of the Indian Grill could have been the one intended.

[redacted] advised that students in the residence halls do receive "Occupant" mail, that is, mail just addressed to the occupant of various rooms in the dormitories or residence halls, as they are called at the University of Colorado. He said this mail is distributed to the student mailboxes for the different rooms in the residence halls and he believes that all students in the residence halls would be familiar with this type of mail.

On June 13, 1960, [redacted] [redacted] University of Colorado, advised she knew of no incidents or of no letters, either anonymous or [redacted] threatening, that could cause her to be suspicious of any student, faculty or staff member. She noted that she is not as familiar with the students as she once was but she does know how the minds of some students work and she believed it possible that this letter could have been written by a student.

[redacted] recalled that during the past year there were several girls in one of the residence halls who had complained about the meals at the dormitory and she said they had called [redacted] one of the [redacted]. She said they had used rather vile language in talking to [redacted] but they had not actually made any threats. [redacted] said she did not know the names of these girls but would endeavor to find out.

b7C

Later on June 13, 1960, [redacted] called and advised she had talked to [redacted] and was advised that the girls who had made the calls or at least who were suspected of making the calls had been interviewed and had denied making any calls. [redacted] said the one girl who seemed to be a leader of a group over there that was suspected of making the calls was [redacted] who resides at [redacted]. [redacted] said she would not like to believe that any of the girls would have written the letter with the intention of actually collecting any money but she felt that some of the girls would be capable of writing a letter as a prank just to see what would happen. [redacted] said should she receive any other information or think of anything that would be of help, she would immediately call.

b6
b7C

C6/9

[redacted] remarked that to her the east door of the University Memorial Center meant the door through the room used by the mountain clubs and, particularly, the Rocky Mountain Rescue Group. She said this room is used a great deal and that many students enter the Indian Grill through this room, particularly those coming from the residence halls area. She also noted that students are rather careless and leave packages, books and other items in this room and, in her opinion, they are sometimes there for several days. She felt that a brief case could have been left there for several days

b6
b7C

It could not have been disturbed by anyone not knowing the reason it was left there.

On June 17, 1960, [redacted]

[redacted] University of Colorado, advised he knew of no threatening or anonymous letters being received by any of the faculty personnel during the past year and could think of no suspects in this particular case. He said to him it sounded like a student and reasoned that it could have been written as a prank, but on the other hand, the student could have seriously believed he could collect a reward in this way.

b6
b7C

On June 20, 1960 [redacted]

[redacted] University of Colorado, advised he could think of no instances where anyone had written or received anonymous or threatening letters during the past year or for several years. He was at a loss to understand how anyone, student or otherwise, could be capable of writing such a letter but then noted that students are notorious for doing the unusual. He said that from his experience he would be inclined to think the letter was written by a student but would not, of course, rule out the faculty or staff even at the University or for that matter anyone from the town of Boulder.

[redacted] said that students at the University of Colorado do use identification cards with their photograph thereon but there is no fingerprint impression placed on these cards and he said that none of the students or the staff or faculty members are fingerprinted at any time.

As [redacted] talked he said he could think of nothing happening during the school year but remembered something that might be significant that happened at the very close of the spring semester. He said that a student by the name of [redacted] who is presently residing in room [redacted], came to him with a story about another student. He said this story may or may not be significant.

advised to his knowledge no one at the Bureau of Standards had received any letters of a threatening nature or that were anonymous. He said that writing a letter by using just a ruler or straightedge was rather unusual in his opinion and noted that engineers will usually do their printing with patterned letters. He said these patterns or templates are familiar to all draftsmen or engineers and can be readily purchased; however, he said anyone writing with one of these patterns would have uniform letters.

said he would immediately advise should he learn of anything or think of anything that might be of help in this case. He said he could not help but think that perhaps a student had written the letter in this case, although he knew that anyone could have done so and remarked that even employees at the Bureau of Standards could have done it and some of them are familiar with various buildings on the campus. He said he had no reason to suspect anyone.

Result of examination:

The envelope, Q1, is made of white linen finish paper containing the watermark "HY TONE." Paper containing this watermark is listed for the Western Tablet and Stationery Corporation, St. Joseph, Missouri. The envelope measures 7.50" in length and 3.96" in width.

The paper comprising the note, Q2, measures 10.97" in length and 8.50" in width. One side of the paper is unruled. The other side bears 36 blue-green lines. Near the top are two sets of double red lines, one of which has a purple line between the two red lines. There is no watermark in the paper. This paper was apparently removed from a pad or tablet.

The hand printing on the envelope and letter, Q1 and Q2, is done mostly in uppercase block printing, apparently with the aid of a ruler or some other straight object. This hand printing was searched through the Anonymous Letter File, but nothing of significance was found. A photograph has been added.
